

Pat Ramsey at Skippers

December 3rd at Skippers in Tampa

This was my first time at this venue and I was very impressed. It's located right in Tampa but has the feel of being out in the woods. Outdoor stage and seating, plenty of room and just a great overall feel.

I met up with other club members Dewey his wife Linda and Gus. I had only seen Pat play once before and I didn't know who he was then, it was at the HOB in Orlando and he was playing with Johnny Winter. It wasn't till later as I learned more about harp player's that I knew.

Seeing him play with his own band was far superior than the JW gig. He plays with an intensity that few do. I got up close during several solos and this guy just devourer's the harp, chomping on it like it was raw meat! When he played Whammer Jammer I knew I had to have every cd he made, so now I do, and it's been a great investment.

After the show Gus and I stuck around and Pat was gracious enough to take pictures with us and shoot the breeze, on top of being an extraordinary harp player, he's a great guy!

Can't wait to see him again, Maybe in February '06, See site calander.
